MEMPHIS – A Cordova man accused of killing his girlfriend and then throwing their 2-day-old daughter into the Mississippi River earlier this year has been indicted in their deaths, said Shelby County Dist. Atty. Gen. Steve Mulroy.

A grand jury indicted 25-year-old Brandon Isabelle on two counts of first-degree murder, aggravated child abuse and neglect, and aggravated kidnapping. He is being held in the Shelby County Jail without bond.

The body of infant Kennedy Hoyle was never found despite a five-day search by authorities in frigid temperatures along the Mississippi River at the north end of Mud Island.

On the evening of Feb. 1, 2022, police discovered an abandoned car with a broken window at Levi Road and Sedgewick Street in Whitehaven. Nearby they found the body of Danielle Hoyle, 27, who had been shot to death.

On 02/01/2021 at approximately 11:00 pm, Officer Sutton 14212 was patrolling the area of Sedgwick and Levi looking for possible stolen vehicles. During his patrol, Officer Sutton located a Tan Chevy Cruze with TN tags of 6H71H2 parked on the road with the driver side window broken out. Officer Sutton ran the tags which showed the vehicle registered to Danielle Hoyle at 3868 Windrust. Officers were dispatched to the address where family advised that they had not heard from Danielle Hoyle and that she had left the house earlier with her two-day old daughter. While officers were making contact with the family, Officer Sutton observed a female laying outside the vehicle off the road with apparent gunshot wounds to her head. The unknown female was pronounced deceased on scene. The description of Danielle Hoyle, given by her family, matched the deceased female found outside Danielle Hoyle's vehicle. Brandon Isabelle, the two-day old child's father was developed as a possible suspect and was detained for questioning.

Brandon Isabelle was advised of his rights and waived his rights, agreeing to speak with police about the death of Danielle Hoyle and the whereabouts of the two-day old daughter. During questioning, Brandon Isabelle admitted to luring Danielle Hoyle to the area of Levi and Sedgwick and shooting her. Brandon Isabelle then also admitted to taking the two day old child out of Danielle's vehicle, driving the child to Island Park and the Upper Mud Island Boat Ramp, where he tossed the child into the water. Brandon Isabelle then stated that the weapon used to shoot Danielle Hoyle was then thrown into the Mississippi River and Wolf River Delta. This Offense occurred in Memphis, Shelby County, Tennessee

Relatives said she had been on the way to meet with Isabelle and that she had their newborn baby with her in a car seat. The baby was missing, however, and when police located and questioned Isabelle, who was married, he told them he had thrown her in the river.
